Summary

The forty-seventh session of the Commission on Population and Development was held at United Nations Headquarters on 26 April 2013 and from 7 to 11 April 2014. Its special theme was “Assessment of the status of implementation of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development”.

The Commission considered the report of the Bureau of the Commission on its intersessional meetings (E/CN.9/2014/2 and Add.1), which detailed the work of the Bureau in organizing the session.

The Commission considered two documents on the special theme of the session. The first, the report of the Secretary-General on world demographic trends (E/CN.9/2014/3), provides an overview of demographic trends in the world, focusing on the major changes that have occurred over the last 20 years since the adoption in 1994 of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development. The second, submitted pursuant to General Assembly resolution 65/234, is based on an operational review of the implementation of the Programme of Action (E/CN.9/2014/4 and Corr.1).

The topics covered by the first report include population size and growth, fertility, marriage and union formation, family planning, mortality, international migration, adolescents and youth, population ageing and urbanization. The report indicates that the world’s population reached 7.2 billion in 2014 and is expected to increase by more than 2 billion by 2050 and notes that most of this growth will occur in the developing regions. The report also highlights that considerable diversity exists in the expected future trajectory of population change across regions and countries, driven primarily by differences in levels and trends of fertility. While the population of Africa and Asia will increase greatly in the coming decades, a number of countries are expected to experience a decline in their population size, because of their persistent below-replacement fertility. Despite the significant improvements in life expectancy that have been achieved over the past 20 years, many countries will fail to meet the targets for life expectancy, infant and child mortality, and maternal mortality included in the Programme of Action.

The report also indicates that over half of the world’s population now lives in urban areas. While the number of large urban agglomerations is increasing, approximately half of all urban dwellers reside in smaller cities and towns. On the one hand, the number of young people has grown rapidly in recent decades and is expected to remain relatively stable over the next 35 years. On the other hand, the number and proportion of older persons are expected to continue rising well into the foreseeable future.

The Secretary-General concludes in the report that the current state of the world’s population is one of unprecedented diversity and change, reflected in new patterns of fertility, mortality, migration, urbanization and ageing. The continuation and consequences of these population trends will present opportunities as well as challenges for the formulation and implementation of the post-2015 United Nations development agenda, and for the achievement of all internationally agreed development goals.
In the second report, the Secretary-General indicates that the evidence presented by the review overwhelmingly supports the consensus, reached at the Conference, that the respect, protection, promotion and fulfilment of human rights are necessary preconditions to improving the development, dignity and well-being of all people; and that sexual and reproductive health and rights, and an understanding of the implications of population dynamics are critical foundations for sustainable development. Protecting and fulfilling the human rights of young people and investing in their quality education, effective livelihood skills, access to sexual and reproductive health services and information, including comprehensive sexuality education, as well as employment opportunities, are necessary for the development of their resilience and create the conditions under which they can achieve their full potential.

The report also highlights that the path to sustainability demands better leadership and greater innovation: to extend human rights and protect all persons from human rights abuses, discrimination and violence, in order that all may have the opportunity to contribute to and benefit from development; to invest in the capacities and creativity of the world’s adolescents and youth for their own sake and to ensure future growth and innovation; to ensure the protection, inclusion and equitable participation of older persons in society; to strengthen health systems to provide universal access to sexual and reproductive health, so that all women can thrive and children can grow in a nurturing environment; to build sustainable cities that enrich urban and rural lives alike; to harness the benefits of migration and address its challenges; and to transform the global economy towards one that will sustain the future of the planet and ensure a common future of human rights, dignity and well-being for all people in the years beyond 2014.

The Commission also reviewed a report of the Secretary-General entitled “Programme implementation and progress of work in the field of population in 2013: Population Division, Department of Economic and Social Affairs” (E/CN.9/2014/5), and took note of the proposed strategic framework for the period 2016-2017, for subprogramme 5, Population, of programme 7, Economic and social affairs.

The Commission heard a keynote address on the theme “Dignity and human rights within the context of the ICPD beyond 2014” delivered by Nafis Sadik, Special Adviser to the Secretary-General and his Special Envoy for HIV/AIDS in Asia and the Pacific. In her address, the Special Adviser highlighted the importance for policymakers to look at the needs of girls entering reproductive age in the coming decades and stressed that the biggest single obstacle to better public health is prejudice and discrimination by society against girls and women.

The Commission also heard a keynote address by David Lam, Population Studies Center, University of Michigan, who provided a comprehensive overview of the interlinkages between population dynamics and sustainable development. In addition, the Commission heard a statement by the Envoy of the Secretary-General on Youth, Ahmad Alhendawi, who brought to the discussion the perspective of youth.

The Commission held an interactive panel discussion moderated by journalist and author, Barbara Crossette, on the theme “ICPD beyond 2014: an unfinished agenda”, at which the following participated: Carmen Barroso, Regional Director of the International Planned Parenthood Federation, western hemisphere region; Oluwafunmilola (Lola) Dare, Chief Executive Officer of the Centre for Health Sciences Training, Research and Development, Nigeria; and Gamal Serour, from Al Azhar University, Egypt.
The Commission decided to postpone the decision on the special theme for its forty-ninth session until its forty-eighth session, in 2015.

The Commission also adopted a resolution on the “Assessment of the status of implementation of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development”, in which the Commission reaffirmed the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development and the key actions for its further implementation.

In the resolution, the Commission stressed that the full implementation of the Programme of Action and the key actions for its further implementation was integrally linked to global efforts to eradicate poverty and achieve sustainable development, and that population dynamics were all important for development, and urged Governments to develop, strengthen and implement effective strategies aimed at eradicating poverty and at promoting inclusive growth and sustainable development that address the needs of children, adolescents and youth, older persons, unemployed persons and persons with disabilities, as well as other disadvantaged and marginalized groups in both urban and rural areas.

The Commission urged Governments to address existing gaps in the implementation of the Programme of Action, and urged Governments, the international community and all other relevant stakeholders to give particular attention to the areas of shortfall in the implementation of the Programme of Action. It expressed deep concern about the pervasiveness of gender-based violence, in particular violence against women and girls, and reiterated the need to further intensify efforts to prevent and eliminate all forms of violence against women and girls, and harmful practices, including child, early and forced marriage and female genital mutilation.

It called upon Governments, agencies of the United Nations system, and other international organizations, as appropriate, to actively support and invest in the increased participation of young people and encouraged Governments to ensure that the social integration of older persons and the promotion and protection of their rights formed an integral part of development policies at all levels. Last, the Commission welcomed the special session to be held during the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly to assess the status of implementation of the Programme of Action and to renew political support for actions required for the full achievements of its goals. It recommended that the Economic and Social Council transmit the report of the Commission on its forty-seventh session to the special session.

The Commission heard a statement by the Vice-President of the Economic and Social Council on the contribution of population and development issues to the theme of the annual ministerial review in 2014, entitled “Addressing ongoing and emerging challenges for meeting the Millennium Development Goals in 2015 and for sustaining development gains in the future”.

The Commission approved the draft provisional agenda for its forty-eighth session and adopted the report on its forty-seventh session.

development agenda towards 2015 and beyond\textsuperscript{23} and the Declaration of the High-level Dialogue on International Migration and Development,\textsuperscript{24}

\textit{Recognizing} the need to address persistent inequalities and discrimination on any grounds, which hamper the achievement of the goals and objectives of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development and the key actions for its further implementation, especially for those groups that are particularly disadvantaged,

\textit{Recognizing also} that the right to development is a universal and inalienable right and an integral part of fundamental human rights, that the human person is the central subject of development, that while development facilitates the enjoyment of all human rights, the lack of development may not be invoked to justify the abridgement of internationally recognized human rights and that the right to development must be fulfilled so as to equitably meet the population, development and environment needs of present and future generations,

\textit{Recalling} resolution 65/234 adopted by the General Assembly on 22 December 2010 on the follow-up to the International Conference on Population and Development beyond 2014, in which the Assembly decided to extend the Programme of Action and the key actions for its further implementation beyond 2014 and ensure its follow-up in order to fully meet its goals and objectives,

\textit{Recalling also} the decision of the General Assembly to convene a special session during the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly in order to assess the status of implementation of the Programme of Action and to renew political support for actions required for the full achievement of its goals and objectives, on the basis of and with full respect for the Programme of Action and with no renegotiation of the existing agreements contained therein,

\textit{Reaffirming} that sustainable development is a central goal in itself and that its economic, social and environmental dimensions constitute key elements of the overarching framework of United Nations activities,

\textit{Stressing} the importance of protecting the achievements of the International Conference on Population and Development, responding to new challenges relevant to population and development and to the changing development environment, and reinforcing the integration of the population and development agenda in global processes related to development, including in the process related to the post-2015 development agenda,

\textit{Reaffirming} the need to promote gender equality and the empowerment of girls and young women in all aspects of youth development, and recognizing the vulnerability of adolescent girls and young women, the need to eliminate discrimination against them and the critical role of boys and young men in ensuring gender equality,

\textit{Acknowledging} that the current generation of adolescents and youth is the largest one ever, and recognizing that adolescents and youth in all countries are a major resource for development and key agents for social change, economic development and technological innovation, and recognizing also that further progress for development requires the realization of their rights, gender equality, and the full participation of young people and youth-led organizations at the international, regional, national and local levels,

Acknowledging also the important link between migration and development, and recognizing that migration brings both opportunities and challenges to countries of origin, transit and destination, to migrants and to the global community, and recognizing also the responsibility of States to promote and protect the human rights and fundamental freedoms of all migrants effectively, regardless of their migration status, especially that of women and children,

Aware that migration has increased in volume, scope, complexity and impact since the adoption of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development, and that migration is an intrinsic feature of a globalizing world in which economic, social, cultural, demographic, political and environmental factors all play an important role,

Acknowledging the importance of sustainable integrated urban development in order to respond effectively to the growth of urban populations, while also recognizing that a significant portion of the world’s poor live in rural areas and that rural communities play an important role in the economic development of many countries,

Recognizing that health is a precondition for economic and social development, and aware that sexual and reproductive health and reproductive rights are central to the realization of social justice and to the achievement of global, regional and national commitments for sustainable development,

Recognizing also that population and development issues are interlinked with sustainable development at the subnational, national and international levels, requiring a multi-stakeholder and international approach, and acknowledging the need to integrate population dynamics into development planning, including its implications for human rights, dignity, quality of life and poverty eradication, at all levels, in order to achieve sustainable development,

Taking note of the contributions made by Member States and relevant stakeholders to the operational review of the implementation of the Programme of Action and the key actions for its further implementation,

Recalling that the Programme of Action requires for its full implementation adequate and sustained mobilization and the availability of resources at the international and national levels, as well as new and additional resources for developing countries from all available funding mechanisms, including multilateral, bilateral and private sources, and that Governments are not expected to meet the goals and objectives of the Programme of Action single-handedly, and expressing concern that funding levels do not meet current needs,

Taking note of the reports of the Secretary-General on world demographic trends\textsuperscript{25} and on the operational review,\textsuperscript{26}

Concerned that, in spite of the progress made towards achieving the full implementation of the Programme of Action and achieving the Millennium

\textsuperscript{25} E/CN.9/2014/3.
Development Goals, considerable gaps still exist in the implementation of the Programme of Action,

1. Reaffirms the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development\(^3\) and the key actions for its further implementation;\(^4\)

2. Also reaffirms the sovereign right of each country to implement the recommendations of the Programme of Action or other proposals in the present resolution, consistent with national laws and development priorities, with full respect for the various religious and ethical values and cultural backgrounds of its people, and in conformity with universally recognized international human rights;

3. Stresses that the full implementation of the Programme of Action and the key actions for its further implementation, which would also contribute to the implementation of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action,\(^4\) as well as those on population and development, education and gender equality, is integrally linked to global efforts to eradicate poverty and achieve sustainable development, and that population dynamics are all important for development;

4. Calls upon Governments to recognize the important linkages between the priorities of the Programme of Action and sustainable development and to build on the progress made and experiences gained from its implementation over the past 20 years in the elaboration of the post-2015 development agenda;

5. Urge Governments to develop, strengthen and implement effective strategies aimed at eradicating poverty and at promoting inclusive growth and sustainable development that address the needs of children, adolescents and youth, older persons, unemployed persons and persons with disabilities, as well as other disadvantaged and marginalized groups in both urban and rural areas;

6. Calls upon States to promote and protect effectively the human rights and fundamental freedoms of all migrants, regardless of their migration status, especially those of women and children, and to address international migration through international, regional or bilateral cooperation and dialogue and through a comprehensive and balanced approach, recognizing the roles and responsibilities of countries of origin, transit and destination in promoting and protecting the human rights of all migrants, and avoiding approaches that might aggravate their vulnerability;

7. Calls upon Governments to intensify efforts to achieve universal access to HIV prevention, treatment, care and support without stigma and discrimination, especially for people living with HIV, and to eliminate mother-to-child transmission towards the vision of ending HIV/AIDS epidemic;

8. Reiterates that increased political will from all Governments is urgently needed to address existing gaps in the implementation of the Programme of Action and to respond to new challenges relevant to population and development;

9. Urge Governments to address existing gaps in the implementation of the Programme of Action, including in such areas as respect for, and protection, promotion and fulfilment of, human rights, and gender equality and the empowerment of women and girls, as well as unequal progress in achieving universal and equitable access to health services, including for sexual and reproductive health, and newborn and child health, uneven progress in health conditions and life expectancy, and the elimination of violence and discrimination without distinction of any kind;

10. Recognizes the rights, duties and responsibilities of parents and other persons legally responsible for adolescents to provide, in a manner consistent with the evolving capacities of the adolescent, appropriate direction and guidance on sexual and reproductive matters, and that countries must ensure that the programmes and attitudes of health-care providers do not restrict the access by adolescents to appropriate services and the information they need, including on sexually transmitted infections and sexual abuse, and also recognizes that in doing so, and in order to address, inter alia, sexual abuse, these services must safeguard the right of adolescents to privacy, confidentiality, respect and informed consent, respecting cultural values and religious beliefs, and that in this context countries should, where appropriate, remove legal, regulatory and social barriers to reproductive health information and care for adolescents;

11. Urges Governments, the international community and all other relevant stakeholders to give particular attention to the areas of shortfall in the implementation of the Programme of Action, including, the elimination of preventable maternal morbidity and mortality through strengthening health systems, equitable and universal access to quality, integrated and comprehensive sexual and reproductive health services, and by ensuring the access of adolescents and youth to full and accurate information and education on sexual and reproductive health, including evidence-based comprehensive education on human sexuality, and promotion, respect, protection and fulfillment of all human rights, especially the human rights of women and girls, including sexual and reproductive health and reproductive rights, and by addressing the persistence of discriminatory laws and the unfair and discriminatory application of laws;

12. Also urges Governments and development partners, including through international cooperation, to improve maternal health, reduce maternal and child morbidity and mortality and prevent and respond to HIV and AIDS, to strengthen health systems and ensure that they prioritize universal access to sexual and reproductive information and health-care services, including family planning, prenatal care, safe delivery and postnatal care, especially breastfeeding and infant and women’s health care, emergency obstetric care, prevention and appropriate treatment of infertility, quality services for the management of complications arising from abortion, access to reliable information and compassionate counselling for women who have unwanted pregnancies, reducing the recourse to abortion through expanded and improved family planning services and, in circumstances where abortion is not against the law, training and equipping health-service providers and other measures to ensure that such abortion is safe and accessible, recognizing that in no case should abortion be promoted as a method of family planning, prevention and treatment of sexually transmitted infections, including HIV, and other reproductive health conditions and information, education and counselling, as appropriate, on human sexuality, reproductive health and responsible parenthood, taking into account the particular needs of those in vulnerable situations, which would contribute to the implementation of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development, the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action and the Millennium Development Goals;
13. Expresses deep concern about the pervasiveness of gender-based violence, in particular violence against women and girls, and reiterates the need to further intensify efforts to prevent and eliminate all forms of violence against women and girls and harmful practices, including child, early and forced marriage and female genital mutilation, and recognizes that violence against women and girls is one of the obstacles to achieving the empowerment of women and that women's poverty and lack of political, social and economic empowerment, as well as their marginalization, may result from their exclusion from social policies for and the benefits of sustainable development and can place them at increased risk of violence;

14. Urges Governments to promote the development of Afro-descendent populations and indigenous peoples by implementing public policies, establishing standards and creating institutions to guide and carry forward affirmative action policies, plans and programmes at the sectoral level, whereby the principles of equality and non-discrimination can be incorporated into all levels of government, with organized civil society participating throughout the process of the design, implementation and evaluation of those instruments;

15. Notes with concern that climate change is one of the greatest challenges of our time, and that the population of all countries, particularly those in developing countries, are vulnerable to the adverse impacts of climate change, which threatens their food security and efforts to eradicate poverty and achieve sustainable development, and urges Governments to strengthen efforts to address climate change, including mitigation and adaptation;

16. Emphasizes that, in order to realize and capitalize on demographic dividend, it is essential to increase and sustain investment in women and youth, especially education for girls, maternal, newborn and child health, and to meet the unmet needs of women for family planning, as well as in job creation, and that a well-trained and healthy workforce together with appropriate economic reforms and policies will result in high return on investment for the growing working-age population;

17. Takes note of the outcome documents of the recent regional conferences on population and development and that each outcome provides region-specific guidance on population and development beyond 2014 for each region that adopted the particular outcome document;

18. Recalls that the Programme of Action requires for its implementation adequate mobilization of resources at the national and international levels, as well as new and additional resources for developing countries from all available funding mechanisms, including multilateral, bilateral and private sources, and that Governments are not expected to meet the goals and objectives of the Programme of Action single-handedly;

19. Encourages Governments, international organizations, including of the United Nations system, international financial institutions and other relevant stakeholders, to assist developing countries in addressing gaps and challenges relevant to population and development and the changing development environment through technical assistance and capacity-building in order to accelerate the implementation of the Programme of Action and the key actions for its further implementation;

20. Also encourages Governments to monitor their progress towards the implementation of the Programme of Action, the key actions for its further implementation and other internationally agreed development goals at the regional, national and local levels, and in this regard to make special efforts to strengthen their civil registration and vital statistics, and health information systems, and to develop the capacity of relevant national institutions and mechanisms to generate population data, disaggregated by sex, age, disability and other categories, as needed to monitor progress and ensure accountability;

21. Emphasizes the importance of building and sustaining partnerships among Governments and relevant civil society stakeholders for the successful implementation of the Programme of Action and the key actions for its further implementation beyond 2014, and invites all Governments and relevant organizations of the United Nations system, as well as the private sector and non-governmental organizations, to continue to support these activities;

22. Calls upon Governments, agencies of the United Nations system and other international organizations, as appropriate, to actively support and invest in the increased participation of young people and in youth-led and youth-focused organizations, taking into account gender equality and the representation of youth of various backgrounds in the formulation, decisions about, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of, as appropriate, international, regional, national and local development strategies and policies that affect young people;

23. Encourages Governments to ensure that the social integration of older persons and the promotion and protection of their rights form an integral part of development policies at all levels;

24. Calls upon the United Nations Population Fund to continue to play a crucial role, within its mandate, in assisting countries, based on their needs and in consultation with them, in achieving the goals and objectives contained in the Programme of Action and the key actions for its further implementation beyond 2014;

25. Requests the Secretary-General to continue his substantive work on population and development, including on the interactions between population dynamics, inequalities and the achievement of the internationally agreed development goals, and in collaboration with the United Nations system and relevant organizations to continue assessing and reporting on progress towards the full implementation of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development and the key actions for its further implementation;

26. Welcomes the special session to be held during the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly to assess the status of implementation of the Programme of Action and to renew political support for actions required for the full achievements of its goals;

27. Recommends in this regard that the Economic and Social Council transmit the report of the Commission on its forty-seventh session to the special session of the General Assembly.
Decision 2014/101
Special theme for the Commission on Population and Development in 2016*

In order to allow the Commission on Population and Development to align its work with the general theme of the Economic and Social Council, and considering the request made by the General Assembly in paragraph 8 of the annex to its resolution 68/1 that “the Economic and Social Council shall invite its subsidiary bodies and the governing bodies of the funds, programmes and specialized agencies to contribute, as appropriate, to its work in keeping with the agreed theme”, the Commission, at its forty-seventh session, decides to postpone the decision on the special theme for its forty-ninth session until its forty-eighth session, in 2015.

Decision 2014/102
Documents considered by the Commission on Population and Development at its forty-seventh session

The Commission on Population and Development takes note of the following documents:

(a) Report of the Secretary-General entitled “Programme implementation and progress of work in the field of population in 2013: Population Division, Department of Economic and Social Affairs”;27

(b) Note by the Secretary General on the proposed strategic framework for the period 2016-2017: subprogramme 5, Population, of programme 7, Economic and social affairs.28

Chapter II

Assessment of the status of implementation of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development

3. The Commission held a general discussion on item 3 of its agenda, “Assessment of the status of implementation of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development”, at its 2nd and 3rd meetings, on 7 April 2014. It had before it the following documents:

(a) Report of the Secretary-General on world demographic trends (E/CN.9/2014/3);

4. At the 2nd meeting, on 7 April, introductory statements were made by the Director of the Population Division, Department of Economic and Social Affairs; and the Executive Coordinator of the secretariat of the International Conference on Population and Development Beyond 2014, United Nations Population Fund.
