ABOUT

UNFPA, the United Nations Population Fund, is committed to strengthening transparency and accountability, both of which are key principles of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development reflected in the UNFPA 2018–2021 Strategic Plan. The Orange Book of Results is a contribution to the commitment to publish comprehensive, quality and timely information about organizational performance and to continue building trust between UNFPA and its stakeholders. This publication offers a new medium to celebrate and share achievements across UNFPA, making data more accessible to partners and the general public, while at the same time providing evidence for informed programmatic decision-making and continuous learning.

The Orange Book of Results features a selection of key results in line with the UNFPA Strategic Plan 2018–2021 indicators, in addition to results reported directly at the country level. With this publication, UNFPA is moving beyond “business as usual” by showcasing, for the first time, a compilation of annual results reported by country offices. This publication showcases results selected from more than 1,500 results collected from beyond the regular UNFPA reporting framework. UNFPA supported reproductive health care for women and youth in more than 150 countries.

The individual pages of this publication and additional results from the strategic plan indicator framework can be found on the UNFPA Transparency Portal.

Unless otherwise noted, the source of data for country-level indicators is the 2019 annual report prepared by UNFPA country offices.

FOREWORD

2019 was truly a landmark year for UNFPA.

As we commemorated our 50th anniversary, governments worldwide reaffirmed their commitment to the International Conference on Population and Development (ICPD) Programme of Action, joining a diverse coalition of stakeholders at the successful Nairobi Summit on ICPD25.

To deliver on the promise of the ICPD agenda, our staff and partners have been working with great ambition towards achieving three transformative results: ending the unmet need for family planning, ending preventable maternal deaths and ending gender-based violence (GBV) and harmful practices, basing all our efforts on high-quality population data to ensure that no one is left behind. The story of our work in more than 150 countries over the past year is presented here, in the Orange Book of Results.

These results not only capture the progress made towards achieving our ambitious goals, but also the partnership, solidarity and perseverance that underpin UNFPA. This same spirit, along with the continued support of our valued donors, will help us overcome monumental challenges such as the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. Despite this unprecedented crisis, we remain as committed as ever to delivering for the millions of women, girls and young people we serve around the world.

In this Decade of Action to achieve the UN Sustainable Development Goals, we at UNFPA are determined to step up our efforts to meet the sexual and reproductive health needs of the most vulnerable. By sharing key results in this publication, we hope to shine a light on UNFPA-supported initiatives and the incredible work carried out by our staff and partners every day.

DR. NATALIA KANEM
UNFPA Executive Director

MESSAGE ON THE VISION

This publication is a snapshot of progress UNFPA has made in 2019 towards delivering on its results as outlined in the UNFPA Strategic Plan 2018-2019. This publication, the first of its kind, showcases the achievements of UNFPA country offices and our partners worldwide. It highlights the progress they have made - through their hard work and concerted efforts over time - to establish sustainable, resilient systems that will facilitate the realization of UNFPA's three transformative results, which promise to change the world for every woman, man and young person.

Across all areas of our mandate and in the six geographic regions where we operate, UNFPA has continued to make progress towards realizing universal access to sexual and reproductive health and reproductive rights. There are many milestones that stand out in this Orange Book of Results, including initiatives to collect data on vulnerable populations who might otherwise be invisible; new laws and policies that secure rights and choices for marginalized women and young people; and achievements in the Pacific and Caribbean Small Island Developing States. These and other successes demonstrate our progress and commitment towards our three transformative results and finally and fully implementing the International Conference on Population and Development Programme of Action.

The Orange Book of Results also demonstrates the efforts UNFPA is making to maximize its transparency and accountability. Together with the UNFPA Transparency Portal and other reporting structures, we hope that we can share the lessons learned and navigate the challenges that we face together - more urgent now than ever in the face of a global pandemic - as we enter the Decade of Action with just 10 years remaining to deliver on the global goals of the 2030 Agenda for everyone, everywhere.

ANGOLA 2019

After enduring 40 years of almost continuous war, Angola was in disarray when peace accords were finally signed in 2002. Since then, the country's economy has grown rapidly, but inequities persist. Nearly 37 per cent of Angolans live in poverty and rates of maternal mortality and teenage pregnancy remain high. Since 1978, UNFPA has been working to increase access to reproductive health (including family planning and treatment of obstetric fistula) and HIV prevention services to ensure sustainable population growth and development through improved availability of reliable information and to increase gender equality.

BOTSWANA 2019

An upper middle-income country, Botswana has enjoyed a stable political environment and rapid economic growth. With one third of the population aged between 10 and 29, UNFPA support today focuses on sexual and reproductive health and on the needs of young people. Priorities include providing quality reproductive health services and improving programming for sexual and reproductive health services to adolescents and young people. UNFPA works closely with its partners to advance gender equality and prevent gender-based violence, advocate for scaled-up youth friendly services and HIV prevention, and ensure the availability of quality disaggregated data.

BURUNDI 2019

Burundi is among Africa's most densely populated countries. There has been progress in reducing maternal mortality, and the rates of skilled attendance at birth and modern contraceptive prevalence have significantly increased. Active in the country since 1975, UNFPA assists with continued efforts to make deliveries safe and provide family planning. It also facilitates young people's access to essential sexual and reproductive health care services. UNFPA programmes further advocate for legislation to advance gender equality and assist in building the capacities of the national statistical system.

COMOROS 2019

Comoros straddles four islands where there has been progress in improving health care services and decreasing maternal mortality. UNFPA programmes continue to help expand services, and to provide emergency obstetric care and family planning. UNFPA also aims to maintain the low prevalence of HIV/AIDS and to manage sexually transmitted infections. Other assistance aids in increasing the availability and use of timely and reliable demographic data, and integrating population variables into gender policies and development programmes.

KEY RESULTS ACHIEVED IN 2019

LOGISTICS MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEM

10 drugs recommended by the World Health Organization to manage obstetric emergencies were available in 100 per cent of health facilities

EMERGENCY OBSTETRIC AND NEWBORN CARE

12,724 assisted deliveries completed in health facilities, including 2,147 caesareans

FAMILY PLANNING SERVICES

5,710 new users of contraceptive methods registered

INTEGRATED SEXUAL AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH SERVICES

21,500 women discharged from the maternity ward of the emergency obstetric and newborn care facility with a modern method of contraception, up from 15,000 in 2018

FAMILY PLANNING SERVICES

25 service providers trained in the insertion and removal of IUDs

TECHNICAL NOTES AND SOURCES

DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO 2019

Still in a fragile phase of post-conflict reconstruction and peacebuilding, the Democratic Republic of the Congo is a least developed country with very high maternal and newborn mortality and HIV prevalence as well as a legacy of sexual violence. With families averaging five or six children, the population is very young and growing at more than 3 per cent per year. Working in the country since 1978, UNFPA aims to improve access to quality reproductive health care services – including HIV interventions – and to integrate population and gender issues in national policies and programmes.

KEY RESULTS ACHIEVED IN 2019

HEALTH LAW

Health Law adopted and published by the President, including family planning and youth sexuality education

GENDER LAWS AND POLICIES

Law on protection of vulnerable populations, including survivors of sexual violence, adopted in the Senate and transmitted to the Parliament

FAMILY PLANNING SERVICES

1,183,603 new users of family planning registered

CERVICAL CANCER SCREENING SERVICES

Six public health facilities offered cervical cancer screening services, up from three in 2018

OBSTETRIC FISTULA

1,220 women benefited from obstetric fistula repair surgery

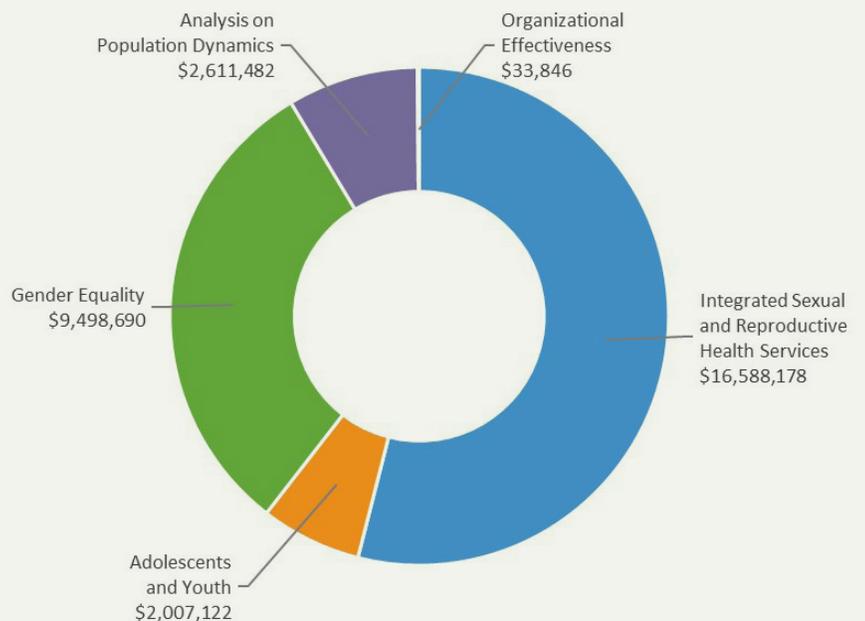

EMERGENCY OBSTETRIC AND NEWBORN CARE

80 referral health facilities offered comprehensive emergency obstetric and newborn care services, up from 47 in 2018.

ERITREA 2019

Through concerted efforts by the government and many partners, Eritrea has dramatically reduced maternal death in recent years in spite of a shortage of trained health workers, low contraceptive prevalence rates and the persistence of child marriage and female genital mutilation. Since 1993, UNFPA has helped improve access to quality maternal and newborn health, family planning and prevention services for HIV and other sexually transmitted infections. The Fund has also worked at the policy level to help advance gender equality and reproductive rights.

ESWATINI 2019

With the highest HIV prevalence in the world, Eswatini has experienced a dramatic decline in life expectancy. Maternal, child and infant mortality rates are also high. UNFPA support helps national institutions combat these trends by expanding high-quality, integrated sexual and reproductive health services, including for HIV prevention, family planning and maternal health. Programmes also support the integration of population data into development planning, policies and laws that aim to achieve gender equality and prevent and respond to gender-based violence (GBV).

ETHIOPIA 2019

The second most populous country in Sub-Saharan Africa, the economy of Ethiopia has experienced strong growth over the past decade, though its impact on poverty reduction is limited. Active in the country since 1973, UNFPA supports efforts to increase access to sexual and reproductive health services, including family planning and emergency obstetric care. Programmes also assist in addressing harmful practices that jeopardize the health of women and girls, such as female genital mutilation. The contraceptive prevalence rate has doubled in recent years, but challenges remain in promoting gender equality and improving maternal health.

KEY RESULTS ACHIEVED IN 2019

SEXUAL AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH/HIV INTEGRATION

National minimum service packages for HIV prevention interventions developed and cascaded to the regions

ADOLESCENT-FRIENDLY SEXUAL AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH SERVICES

85 per cent of facilities provided the standard adolescent-friendly sexual and reproductive health package, up from 28.5 per cent in 2016

CERVICAL CANCER SCREENING SERVICES

311 midwives and nurses completed training in cervical cancer diagnosis and treatment

EMERGENCY OBSTETRIC AND NEWBORN CARE

600 health care providers received training on obstetric haemorrhage management

FAMILY PLANNING SERVICES

100 per cent of tertiary-level and 93.6 per cent of secondary-level service delivery points provided at least five family planning methods as per the national guideline

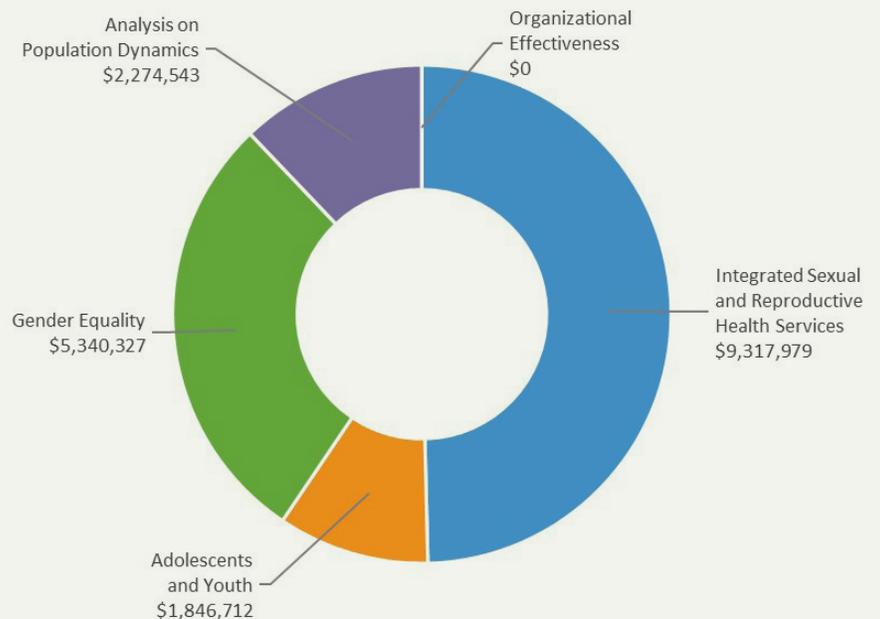

MATERNAL DEATH NOTIFICATION

KENYA 2019

Despite steady economic growth, rich cultural and biological diversity, and a strong tourist industry, almost half of Kenya's people live in poverty. Addressing the country's rapid population growth – close to 3 per cent per year – is seen as key to sustainable development, as outlined in the national planning strategy known as Kenya Vision 2030. UNFPA's contribution includes strengthening reproductive health services, improving supply chains for contraceptives, supporting advocacy against gender-based violence (GBV) and facilitating integration of population dynamics into policy formulation.

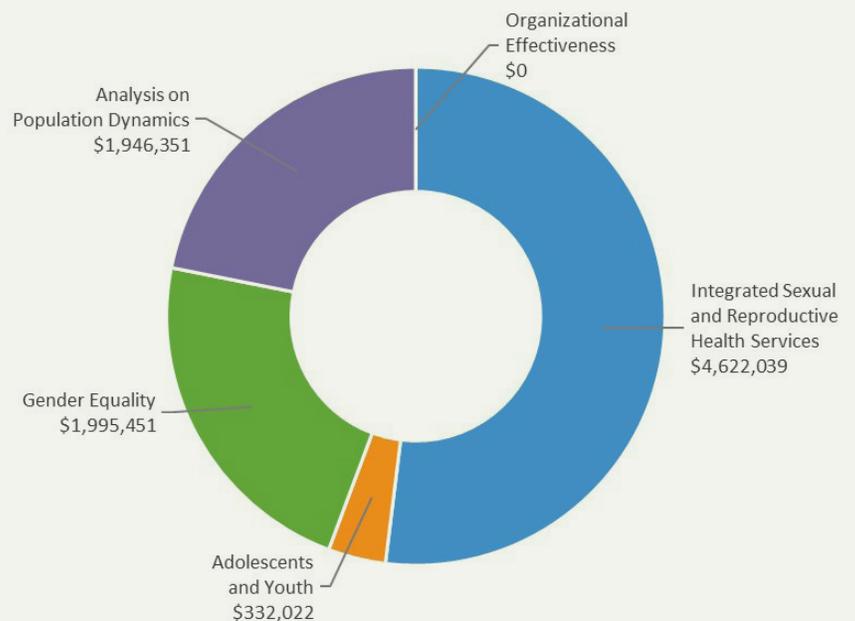

KEY RESULTS ACHIEVED IN 2019

 FAMILY PLANNING SERVICES 353 health workers trained in provision of long-acting reversible contraceptives (LARCs), enabling an additional 35 facilities to offer services for an expanded choice of methods	 FAMILY PLANNING SERVICES 820,754 family planning new acceptors provided with modern contraceptives in 12 targeted counties	 EMERGENCY OBSTETRIC AND NEWBORN CARE 313 health facilities increased their capacity to provide basic emergency obstetric and newborn care services

LESOTHO 2019

A least developed country according to the Human Development Index, Lesotho is a landlocked country surrounded by South Africa. With more than half the population living below the poverty line, it faces major challenges including high HIV prevalence and a high maternal mortality rate. UNFPA initiatives in Lesotho provide support to reduce maternal mortality, prevent HIV (particularly among youth), promote gender equality and develop quality data related to population issues.

MADAGASCAR 2019

With a rapidly growing population putting pressure on a weak health care system, Madagascar contends with a high maternal death rate and a large unmet need for family planning. Thousands of women also suffer from birth injuries such as obstetric fistula. UNFPA has provided assistance since 1978. It is currently financing more than 90 per cent of reproductive health commodities, part of a drive to expand quality reproductive health and family planning services, including for vulnerable groups. Programmes also support the reduction of gender-based violence (GBV) and assist with the development of reliable demographic data.

MALAWI 2019

With persistently high fertility and more than half of its people under the age of 18, Malawi's population is growing rapidly and expected to reach 15.7 million by 2015. Although maternal mortality has declined it remains high. High rates of HIV show no signs of leveling off - one factor in Malawians' short life expectancy. Since 1979, UNFPA has been working with Malawi to improve reproductive health, prevent HIV and other sexually transmitted infections and promote gender equality and the empowerment of women. It is also working with the government to incorporate population dynamics in development planning.

MOZAMBIQUE 2019

Active in Mozambique since 1979, UNFPA is currently supporting programmes linked to governance, social issues and the economy, under the One UN Action Plan. Recent achievements include new national policies on family planning and successes in the prevention of HIV. While maternal mortality has been significantly reduced in the country, it remains high. UNFPA works with parliamentary groups to strengthen laws on women’s rights, and helps expand quality integrated sexual and reproductive health care. Programmes also foster economic empowerment through training in life skills and other initiatives.

NAMIBIA 2019

A politically stable upper middle-income country, Namibia faces continuing challenges. HIV and sexually transmitted infections rates are high, and maternal mortality and the unmet need for family planning have risen. Since 1972, UNFPA has supported strengthening sexual and reproductive health services, promoting gender equality and bolstering national capacities to prevent and respond to gender-based violence (GBV). Programmes help expand high-quality emergency obstetric and newborn care and family planning services and encourage young people to advocate for sexual and reproductive care and forge links to HIV services. UNFPA also helps to produce high-quality demographic data.

RWANDA 2019

With one of sub-Saharan Africa's highest population densities, Rwanda's mostly rural population relies largely on subsistence farming. The estimated population growth rate of 2.6 per cent in the coming decades could challenge efforts to reduce poverty. UNFPA helps ensure the wider availability of reproductive health and youth-friendly sexual and reproductive health and HIV prevention services through a framework of national policies, strategies and guidelines. It backs high-quality disaggregated data to guide policymaking and planning. Programmes also bolster responses to gender-based violence (GBV) and help to empower women in rural areas.

UNITED REPUBLIC OF TANZANIA 2019

Active in Tanzania since 1975, UNFPA is implementing its eighth country programme 2016–2021. Aiming to leave no one behind and based on the principle of reaching the furthest behind first, UNFPA focuses on districts with poor sexual and reproductive health and rights indicators, reaching women, adolescent girls and other young people, marginalized populations and those seeking refuge in Tanzania. The five-year country programme supports the Government of Tanzania's Five-Year Development Plan and the Revolutionary Government of Zanzibar's Strategy for Growth and Reduction of Poverty III and respective national visions. This work aligns with the Sustainable Development Goals, United Nations Development Assistance Plan II and the UNFPA Strategic Plan 2018-2021.

ALBANIA 2019

Since 1989, UNFPA has assisted Albania to improve sexual and reproductive health, alongside population and development strategies and policies. Key programmes contribute to public sector reform for accession to the European Union, one of Albania's main priorities. UNFPA also assists government counterparts in updating policy frameworks, developing higher quality services, enhancing standardized oversight mechanisms, and fostering a more effective use of data in planning and policymaking. With nearly half the population under the age of 32, initiatives targeting young people are a key priority as is the active promotion of gender equality.

ARMENIA 2019

Armenia faces multiple challenges, from high unemployment and a rapidly ageing population to a sex ratio skewed in favour of boys. Since 1999, UNFPA has supported new policies and services to broaden access to quality reproductive health care, particularly for vulnerable groups. It has helped develop the skills of health-care providers and cultivate new skills for preventing HIV, while contraceptive use and maternal mortality rates have improved. Efforts to advance gender equality incorporate data collection and analysis to guide actions towards the reduction of gender-based violence (GBV).

BELARUS 2019

Poverty has fallen dramatically in Belarus, but some groups remain vulnerable, particularly single-parent households and families with more than three children. While medical services are free, modern administration and planning are in early stages. Active in Belarus since 1994, UNFPA assists in building capacities to produce and apply quality data on reproductive health and population and development issues to development plans. It helps forge government and civil society partnerships, and advocates for policies prioritizing vulnerable groups and protecting the rights of individuals. UNFPA programmes also support measures to prevent gender-based violence (GBV).

GEORGIA 2019

With a low birth rate and emigration spurred by poverty and unemployment, Georgia faces the challenges of depopulation and an ageing population. Privatization and increasing costs have challenged health reforms, and the unmet need for contraceptives is still high despite greater availability. Emerging concerns include the increasing incidence of reproductive system cancers. Since 1999, UNFPA has assisted efforts to meet needs related to reproductive health, population and development and gender equality. Among other measures, UNFPA support helps to boost the quality and accessibility of reproductive health services and to build capacities to collect and manage population data.

KAZAKHSTAN 2019

With more births and fewer deaths, Kazakhstan has achieved stable population growth after a period of decline. Maternal mortality has fallen dramatically and there is nearly universal skilled attendance at births. Gaps in access to contraceptives remain, however, and young people lack adequate sexual and reproductive health services. UNFPA began supporting Kazakhstan in 1992. Today, it provides expert advice and helps the government and non-governmental organizations develop capacities to ensure that motherhood is safe, that family planning is available and that all women and young people can access high-quality sexual and reproductive health care.

REPUBLIC OF MOLDOVA 2019

A lower middle-income country with development indicators lagging behind the European average, Moldova has made significant progress in reducing maternal mortality. But low contraceptive prevalence, high rates of unintended pregnancies and violence against women remain major challenges. Active in the country since 1995, UNFPA helps strengthen the management of reproductive health commodities and the capacity of primary care facilities to provide integrated sexual and reproductive health services. Programmes also assist with HIV prevention services as well as the production of data on population dynamics, youth, gender equality and sexual and reproductive health.

SERBIA 2019

On its path towards accession to the European Union, Serbia is undergoing structural reforms and in recent years has achieved positive economic growth. However, the country faces unfavourable demographic trends: low birth rate, high emigration, ageing and decreasing population numbers. Development in Serbia is uneven and inequalities persist, especially for vulnerable populations such as the Roma, persons with disabilities, youth, vulnerable women and older people. Since 2006, UNFPA in Serbia has focused on supporting reproductive health and rights, youth development and links between population and development. UNFPA works with the government and civil society to empower people, meet reproductive health needs and strengthen population policies.

TURKEY 2019

UNFPA-supported programmes in Turkey aim to reduce maternal mortality and high-risk pregnancies and expand reproductive health services to vulnerable groups, including youth. UNFPA also supports the advancement of women's human rights, combats gender-based violence (GBV) and assists with data on emerging population issues such as migration and ageing. UNFPA's work in Turkey with refugees and cross-border into northwest Syria includes basic sexual and reproductive health services and psychosocial support to survivors of GBV in emergency situations, provided through safe spaces for women and girls. Cross-border efforts also support mobile and stationary health teams that provide life-saving care. UNFPA assistance in Turkey began in 1971.

TURKMENISTAN 2019

Turkmenistan is an upper middle-income country that has experienced steady economic growth. UNFPA assistance began in 1992 with the supply of reproductive health commodities and training. Programmes today continue to strengthen reproductive health care and promote outreach to young people. UNFPA also helps to integrate reproductive health in national emergency preparedness and population issues in development planning. Legal reviews and strengthened human rights protections, among other measures, aim to advance gender equality.

UKRAINE 2019

Ukraine's demographic crisis combines an extremely low fertility rate and a rapidly ageing population. Most families have just one child. One in five Ukrainians has reached the age of 60 and this is projected to increase to one in three by 2050. High mortality, significant external and internal migration, poor health, high relative poverty and inequalities, a widening gap between urban and rural areas, and high HIV prevalence present additional social and economic challenges for Ukraine's future.

UZBEKISTAN 2019

Uzbekistan is Central Asia's most populous country, and predominantly young. The government is making major efforts to improve maternal and reproductive health including access to family planning, but challenges remain to fully upholding reproductive rights. The professional skills of medical personnel, especially in rural areas, also needs further strengthening. Since 1993, UNFPA has focused on promoting reproductive health and rights, advancing national capacities to use population data for development programmes and supporting efforts to prevent the spread of HIV/AIDS, especially among vulnerable groups.

EGYPT 2019

Through effective policies and programmes, Egypt has made important progress in ensuring widespread access to reproductive health services and reducing maternal deaths. Challenges remain, such as stagnating contraceptive prevalence, female genital mutilation and maternal mortality rates. Since 1972, UNFPA has helped the national family planning and population programme overcome initial opposition and become a success. Today, UNFPA supports continued improvements, advocating for integrating reproductive care in primary health services with full respect for reproductive rights. Programmes also focus on improving maternal health and reducing gender-based violence (GBV).

LEBANON 2019

UNFPA assistance in Lebanon began in 1993. Having made significant advances in terms of human development, the country still faces persistent disparities in health and well-being. Almost all women receive care during pregnancy and delivery, and maternal mortality has declined. However, post-partum care is more limited. Today, UNFPA helps close the remaining gaps in policies, data and regulations and supports coordination for emergency preparedness. Support for health reform includes strengthening the quality of reproductive health care and reaching out to underserved groups. UNFPA is also introducing tools to integrate gender equality considerations in public planning and spending choices.

SOMALIA 2019

Active in Somalia since the 1970s, UNFPA supports humanitarian responses and recovery efforts. It also works with health services to reduce maternal mortality, among the highest rates in the world, by strengthening community midwifery and the supply of commodities. Further efforts have focused on conducting nationwide population estimation surveys. Engaging with the government and civil society to provide services for vulnerable youth, UNFPA promotes reproductive rights and the elimination of harmful practices such as female genital mutilation.

KEY RESULTS ACHIEVED IN 2019

NURSING AND MIDWIFERY GOVERNANCE AND OVERSIGHT

Midwifery regulation for autonomous midwifery practice, client safety and quality of care implemented

SEXUAL AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH SERVICES

466,994 antenatal care cases, 98,552 normal deliveries and 3,708 Caesarean sections supported by UNFPA

EMERGENCY OBSTETRIC AND NEWBORN CARE

27 basic emergency obstetric and newborn care centres and nine comprehensive EmONC sites supported

OBSTETRIC FISTULA

194 fistula repair surgeries provided

MIDWIVES TRAINED

180 qualified midwives graduated from UNFPA-supported midwifery training schools

STATE OF PALESTINE 2019

Reproductive health care services in Palestine are affected by cyclical humanitarian crises that cause a range of challenges, from duplication of services to shortage of equipment and supplies and restricted mobility. UNFPA began its operations in 1986. Today it focuses equally on two objectives: the first, for the longer term, is to support health institutions in providing high-quality, comprehensive and rights-based services, including those targeting youth; the second entails responding to humanitarian needs, particularly among vulnerable communities in Gaza and some vulnerable localities in the West Bank.

TUNISIA 2019

Tunisia is a middle-income country where life expectancy is increasing, maternal and newborn mortality rates have decreased and contraceptive prevalence is on the rise. But progress is uneven between rural and more industrialized regions. Operating in Tunisia since 1974, UNFPA helps expand reproductive health services, especially in remote and rural areas, towards upholding the right of all people to access information and care. Youth and adolescents are a central focus. UNFPA partners with the government and civil society to target services to adolescents and youth and to involve them in development planning. UNFPA programmes also support the advancement of gender equality as a key priority.

YEMEN 2019

Yemen has one of the highest maternal mortality rates in the Arab States region. UNFPA has helped improve the availability and quality of reproductive health services, in particular to provide safe deliveries and care for women with obstetric fistula. Humanitarian interventions target women and girls displaced by crises. UNFPA also engages men, young people, religious and community leaders to raise awareness on women's health and rights. It works with policymakers to integrate population issues in poverty reduction and other national plans, and amend legislation to reduce gender discrimination.

AFGHANISTAN 2019

Home to one of the world's youngest, fastest-growing populations, Afghanistan faces challenges exacerbated by conflict, weak governance and cultural barriers, especially women and children living in poverty. UNFPA programmes invest in reproductive health and rights, gender equality, and socioeconomic development; humanitarian assistance and youth issues are priorities in all three areas. Assistance is channelled to replicable programmes in provinces with high rates of poverty and maternal and infant mortality, and where communities are actively engaged in their development.

BANGLADESH 2019

Bangladesh aspires to become a middle-income country by 2021. Women's status in society and high rates of maternal death and illness remain serious concerns, as does the prevalence of child marriage. Since 1974, UNFPA has helped improve reproductive health care services, working to achieve universal access by emphasizing gender-inclusiveness and human rights. Support to reduce sexual and gender-based violence (GBV) includes increasing awareness and extending services for survivors. UNFPA also helps bolster national capacities to integrate population and gender concerns across plans and policies.

BHUTAN 2019

While Bhutan has enjoyed robust economic growth, poverty reduction remains a priority. Serious challenges to the constitutional commitment to universal health care exist, from rising costs to poor knowledge of reproductive health, especially among young people. UNFPA has supported the integration of family planning in the health care system since it began operating in Bhutan in 1974. Today, under an expanded programme addressing overall population and development, it helps deliver comprehensive reproductive health care services, including for adolescents, and advocates for incorporating gender equality into key development frameworks.

KEY RESULTS ACHIEVED IN 2019

ADOLESCENT HEALTH COMPETENCIES

Adolescent-friendly health services module integrated into diploma course of community health, nursing and midwifery

ADOLESCENT HEALTH COMPETENCIES

Health care providers at 10 hospitals trained in standard procedures to provide adolescent-friendly health services

CAMBODIA 2019

Since 1994, following a 30-year period of war and internal conflict, Cambodia has rebuilt itself. Although it remains one of Asia's least developed (and youngest) countries, Cambodia's progress in reducing poverty and improving health has been remarkable. Even with 80 per cent of Cambodians living in rural areas, the country has managed to dramatically reduce maternal and infant mortality. Continued investments in the health, education and opportunities of the large population of young people could help the country realize a substantial demographic dividend.

KEY RESULTS ACHIEVED IN 2019

ADOLESCENT HEALTH COMPETENCIES

CHINA 2019

Since UNFPA began providing assistance in China in 1979, it has contributed substantially to strengthened capacity to conduct demographic analyses and to use data for policy planning, shifting its attention later on to a comprehensive approach to sexual and reproductive health, including quality of care and advocacy for informed choice. Over time it also started incorporating a new set of emerging national priorities related to the issues of youth, urbanization, ageing, gender-based violence and the distorted sex ratio at birth.

INDIA 2019

Although its fertility rate has declined from about 3.6 to 2.4 children in the last three decades, India is projected to become the world's most populous nation by 2028, with a population of some 1.45 billion. Now a middle-income country, India has seen significant improvements in health and education, but wide inequalities persist. Early marriage and pregnancy contribute to excessive maternal death among women under 24. The low status of women is a factor as well, one that is reflected in a skewed ratio of girls to boys.

ISLAMIC REPUBLIC OF IRAN 2019

The Islamic Republic of Iran is a middle-income country experiencing rapid changes and a demographic transition with an increasingly large young population. With UNFPA support since 1970, progress has been marked on maternal health and the management of population data. Today, programmes support high-quality integrated reproductive health care, including for HIV/AIDS and other vulnerable groups, and strengthened reproductive health responses in emergencies. UNFPA also supports the government to address emerging population issues including youth, ageing, female-headed households, urbanization and migration.

LAO 2019

The Lao People's Democratic Republic is a diverse country with more than 49 ethnic groups, many residing in hard-to-reach mountainous areas. The country has a high adolescent birth rate and one of the highest maternal mortality ratios in the region. Since 1976, UNFPA support has been integral in responding to the needs of women and the growing youth population. With 60 per cent of the country's 6.5 million people under the age of 25, the focus is now on sexual reproductive health, needs, choices and rights as an entry point to sustainable development.

MALAYSIA 2019

More than half of Malaysia's population is below the age of 30, while the proportion of elderly people is fast-growing. UNFPA has provided assistance in the country since 1973. Today, UNFPA advises on key population and development issues, focusing on vulnerable populations and young people, in terms of their access to contraception and their sexual and reproductive health needs. Programmes further strengthen the response to gender-based violence (GBV) through the public health system and support the incorporation of population dynamics in policy and programme planning. Through South-South cooperation, UNFPA also encourages the exchange of experiences between Malaysia and developing nations.

MALDIVES 2019

A complex territory of 192 islands, the Maldives has achieved rapid development, with substantial declines in fertility and maternal mortality, and strengthened systems to respond to gender-based violence (GBV). Offering support since 1976, and establishing its Country Office in 1994, UNFPA assists in delivering high-quality, equitable reproductive health services and information, and helps improve young people's access to sexual and reproductive health and information. Training in the use of population data has increased national capacities to account for population dynamics and improved targeting of public policies. UNFPA engages with parliamentarians, religious institutions, civil society and the media to promote gender equality.

PAKISTAN 2019

Pakistan contends with the risk of natural disasters, a large and growing youth bulge, and entrenched poverty and inequality, all of which pose significant challenges to delivering reproductive health and gender-based violence (GBV) services. In addition, the national contraceptive prevalence rate has stagnated and skilled birth attendance remains low. The country office is continuously engaged in humanitarian response in areas suffering from flooding and drought, and in areas hosting internally displaced persons. Through policy advocacy and national capacity development, UNFPA helps to accelerate progress on the Sustainable Development Goals to improve quality and increase coverage of reproductive health services, including family planning. UNFPA also supports the strengthening of data collection and analysis related to population issues.

PAPUA NEW GUINEA 2019

A lower middle-income country, Papua New Guinea is home to one of the world's most ethnically diverse populations. Most people live in rural areas, often in areas of difficult access. This represents a complex challenge for health care and social services delivery. Fertility rates are high. UNFPA started work in Papua New Guinea in 1996. It helps improve the quality of and access to maternal, newborn, child and adolescent health services, including for sexual and reproductive health. PHILIPPINES 2019

Active in the Philippines since 1970, UNFPA backs national objectives to achieve universal access to sexual and reproductive health care, and reduce maternal deaths. Though maternal mortality is slowly decreasing, the unmet need for family planning has edged up. In disadvantaged areas, UNFPA supports health systems to deliver core services to women and their newborn infants, young people, and men. It partners with government agencies on using effective data to guide policy-making, and civil society organizations to advocate for reproductive rights.

SRI LANKA 2019

Despite years of internal conflict and the lasting impact of the 2004 tsunami, Sri Lanka has made great progress in improving the status, health and education of women and has recently become a middle-income country. Its dramatic reductions in maternal mortality are a model for other countries and its slowly growing population is expected to stabilize by 2024. Since 1969, UNFPA has partnered with Sri Lanka to improve access and availability of quality reproductive health services and information for women, men and young people.

THAILAND 2019

An upper-middle income country, Thailand has faced several challenges relating to population changes brought about by socioeconomic development. Thailand welcomes millions of migrants each year. Rapid population ageing is straining human resources for future development, and increasing urbanization is shifting family structures. The emerging needs of a rapidly ageing society, youth participation and human capital development throughout the life-course are at the core of UNFPA's work in Thailand. National policies and strategies on population development informed by evidence-based analysis have been formulated to address the needs of the heterogeneous population. UNFPA supports Thailand in establishing the South-South Cooperation hub on safe motherhood with sustainable models.

TIMOR LESTE 2019

Timor-Leste is moving from recovery to development, following a violent transition to independence that left its infrastructure in shambles and its people in poverty. UNFPA has been providing support to the country since 1999, including partnering on a joint programme to promote gender equality and women's rights. Though recent economic and social progress has been substantial, the country still faces high rates of poverty and maternal mortality, and struggles to keep pace with one of the fastest growing populations in the world.

VIET NAM 2019

Viet Nam has achieved rapid economic growth and reduced poverty, but profound disparities remain among different groups and regions. Maternal mortality is much higher in some areas and among ethnic minorities. UNFPA's engagement dates back to 1977. Today, it focuses on strengthening the health system to provide universal access to sexual and reproductive health care for youth, ethnic minorities, and domestic violence survivors. It highlights emerging issues such as ageing, advocates for comprehensive social protection, and supports rectifying a sex ratio imbalance skewed towards boys.

BENIN 2019

While Benin remains a poor country, the government is committed to poverty reduction, especially among vulnerable populations. Maternal mortality rates are high, due to insufficient emergency obstetric and newborn care, and a high unmet need for family planning, among other factors. UNFPA supports programmes to improve services in both areas and expand reproductive health care specific to adolescents and youth. It helps strengthen statistical information systems as well as national capacities to manage and coordinate population programmes. Support for gender equality includes initiatives to prevent and respond to violence against women.

CHAD 2019

UNFPA assistance began in Chad in 1986 with the rehabilitation of the National Centre for Maternal and Child Health/Family Well-Being. With limited health infrastructure, poverty is widespread and harmful practices such as child marriage are prevalent. Current UNFPA programmes target reducing the maternal mortality rate, which is among the world's highest. They emphasize strengthening capacities at the Ministry of Public Health, including through the provision of technical skills, medical equipment and reproductive health commodities. UNFPA also assists in the training of gynaecologists, obstetricians and midwives essential to providing quality services.

REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO 2019

Buffeted by humanitarian crises, the Republic of the Congo has a high maternal death rate, even though trained personnel attend most births. To accelerate development, the government is committed to free maternal and child health care as well as gender equality, both goals supported by UNFPA. Active in the country since 1972, UNFPA has helped reduce maternal mortality, increase contraceptive prevalence and lessen HIV/AIDS rates. Current programmes focus on better health for mothers and newborns, including in indigenous communities. They promote family planning, and sexual and reproductive health education for young people.

GABON 2019

UNFPA began providing support in Gabon in 1988. Programming in the country focuses on sexual and reproductive health, including family planning, emergency obstetric care, adolescent sexual and reproductive health and HIV prevention. UNFPA promotes gender equality and women's rights along with ending gender-based violence (GBV). UNFPA also works on population dynamics and development analysis. The office demonstrates respect for cultural diversity and works through partnerships with the national government, civil society and international partners in development.

GUINEA 2019

Facing ongoing economic and social challenges, Guinea's infrastructure, equipment and skilled staff are scarce and unevenly distributed across the health system. A large number of girls become mothers before the age of 17 and limited maternal health services help explain high rates of maternal mortality. UNFPA supports reproductive health services with programmes on essential obstetric care, adolescents and youth, family planning and health commodities. Other initiatives help to produce high-quality data for national policies and programmes and establish mechanisms to respond to gender-based violence (GBV).

GUINEA BISSAU 2019

Since its independence in 1974, Guinea Bissau has experienced socioeconomic challenges. Poverty afflicts nearly 70 per cent of the population. There has been progress in increasing contraceptive prevalence, but maternal mortality remains high and HIV rates have increased. UNFPA helps sustain focus on quality reproductive health care such as family planning and emergency obstetric services, and assists in the procurement of essential commodities to prevent and treat sexually transmitted infections. Assistance with the census ensures accurate data for policies and programmes, while engagement with youth and women promotes respect for reproductive rights.

LIBERIA 2019

Active in Liberia since 1979, UNFPA helps to deliver better emergency obstetric and newborn care, prevent and treat obstetric fistula, manage reliable supplies of modern contraceptives, and stop gender-based violence (GBV). Recovering from 14 years of conflict that ended in 2003, many people in Liberia still live in poverty. Young people face formidable challenges, and early marriage and pregnancy are common among girls. UNFPA's focus on youth includes supporting targeted sexual and reproductive health care services, and comprehensive sexuality education. It also backs data collection and analysis to inform policies on youth, gender equality, and sexual and reproductive health.

NIGERIA 2019

Nigeria has a dynamic economy and a large population expected to double in the next two decades. Though maternal mortality rates have fallen, the overall numbers of maternal deaths and teenage pregnancy remain high and contraceptive prevalence is low. UNFPA programmes focus on improving maternal and newborn health, combating fistula and providing access to sexual and reproductive health information and services for young people. Family planning measures broaden access to high-quality services and improved management of contraceptives. Other efforts assist in producing demographic data for development planning.

SAO TOME AND PRINCIPE 2019

With UNFPA support since 1985, Sao Tome and Principe has significantly expanded reproductive health services, leading to improved indicators related to child and maternal health. The use of family planning, however, remains low, and the adolescent pregnancy rate is high, exacerbating the vulnerability of young people, particularly girls. UNFPA programmes use a multisectoral approach to address reproductive health issues and strong communications to promote behavioural change and reposition family planning, including gender and youth issues in national development policies and plans.

SIERRA LEONE 2019

Despite recent civil conflict, Sierra Leone has significantly reduced its maternal mortality rate. Teenage pregnancy continues to be an issue, however, accounting for a high portion of maternal deaths. Active in the country since 1971, UNFPA supports ongoing improvements in sexual and reproductive health services through midwifery programmes, better emergency obstetric and newborn care and the effective management of reproductive health commodities. THE GAMBIA 2019

A least developed country, The Gambia has reduced maternal mortality, but further progress is needed. Limited access to contraceptives and the prevalence of child marriage also remain key challenges. Active in the country since 1972, UNFPA helps strengthen capacities to provide reproductive health care, including emergency obstetric and family planning services. With HIV prevalence edging up, UNFPA has assisted with collecting national data to map the epidemic's socio-economic differences and applying new information to policy-making. Programmes also back the implementation of the national gender and women's empowerment policy.

TOGO 2019

Active in Togo since 1972, UNFPA programmes help build capacities to provide emergency obstetric and newborn care, reliable family planning and sexual and reproductive health services for youth. Maternal mortality in the country is decreasing slowly, but contraceptive prevalence remains low, mostly due to limited health services, poverty and gender inequality. Efforts to prevent gender-based violence (GBV) include advocacy against early marriage and programmes for students in schools. UNFPA also assists in increasing national capacity to analyse demographic data.

KEY RESULTS ACHIEVED IN 2019

MOBILE CLINICS

Mobile health teams provided 1,200 ultrasounds and 3,123 HIV screening tests and managed 283 cases of sexually transmitted infections

EMERGENCY OBSTETRIC AND NEWBORN CARE

BRAZIL 2019

Brazil is the world's fifth largest country with the eighth largest economy by nominal GDP and is the 85th country in the Human Development Index (2013). Despite being a middle-income country, it continues to face inequalities in income distribution and disparities associated with gender, race and generational and regional disparities. Since 1973, UNFPA support has contributed sexual reproductive health and family planning resources and services throughout the country. Through this effort and governmental support, the poverty rate has decreased significantly over the last 15 years.

COLOMBIA 2019

Colombia is a middle-income country, but development lags behind in some rural areas and among four million people uprooted by conflict. Adolescent fertility is high, though overall rates have fallen. The maternal mortality rate indicates gaps in health services. Active in Colombia since 1974, UNFPA helps cultivate state capacities to manage population, reproductive health and gender equity issues, including through integrated services for people suffering displacement and poverty. It encourages women's and youth organizations to advocate for their sexual and reproductive health and reproductive rights and promotes a life-cycle approach to reproductive health care.

ECUADOR 2019

A middle-income country, Ecuador is facing several shortfalls in reducing maternal and neonatal mortality and preventing adolescent pregnancies. As a result, it is committed to closing these gaps in specific regions and among vulnerable groups. Active in Ecuador for more than 30 years, UNFPA advocates for universal access to reproductive health services, and helps mobilize resources and political will accordingly. Through partnerships with national ministries, local governments and civil society, it fosters effective coordination for the national strategy on family planning and preventing adolescent pregnancy.

TECHNICAL NOTES AND SOURCES

EL SALVADOR 2019

A low middle-income country in which half the population is under the age of 25, El Salvador suffers from high socioeconomic and gender inequity. High emigration rates, coupled with a slowly decreasing total fertility rate, are contributing to a rapidly ageing population. With approximately one third of all births taking place to women under the age of 19, UNFPA supports programmes to prevent adolescent pregnancy. Key initiatives also focus on preventing sexual violence and caring for survivors. UNFPA's cooperation with El Salvador began in 1973.

GUATEMALA 2019

Active in Guatemala since 1969, UNFPA works to strengthen national capacities to ensure access to sexual and reproductive rights and prevent maternal mortality and adolescent pregnancy. Programmes support the country to integrate family planning, comprehensive sexuality education, and the prevention of gender-based violence (GBV), especially sexual violence, at the highest levels in the Specific Cabinets of Women and Youth. UNFPA also supports national efforts to improve investments for indigenous adolescent girls to plan their future and achieve their full potential.

HAITI 2019

Haiti is still suffering from the consequences of the devastating 2010 earthquake. More than half of the population has no access to health services due to steep costs, insufficient availability in rural areas and limited access to information and comprehensive sexual education services. The maternal mortality ratio is the highest in Latin America and the Caribbean. UNFPA responds to humanitarian needs and assists with expanding basic maternal and reproductive health care services, especially to the poorest and most excluded groups. It helps build capacities to generate reliable data on population trends and supports measures to protect women and girls against gender-based violence (GBV).

HONDURAS 2019

With more than half of Hondurans younger than 25 and a majority of the population living below the poverty line, the country faces great challenges in meeting the social, economic and health needs of its people. Since 1978, UNFPA has been supporting efforts to improve access to reproductive health and family planning services and sexual and reproductive health education for young people. It has also advocated at the policy level to advance gender equality and reproductive rights. Continued efforts are needed, especially given the burgeoning number of youth entering their reproductive years.

MEXICO 2019

With a total population of more than 118 million, Mexico is now a high-middle income country with an advanced demographic transition, where birth and death rates are low. It faces wide economic and social disparities, however, and more than half of its people live in poverty. UNFPA has been active in Mexico since 1972. Current programmes address key issues such as the incorporation of population dynamics in local development planning and programmes; youth-oriented policies and programmes; the sexual and reproductive health of indigenous people, migrants and youth; comprehensive sexuality education and the prevention of gender-based violence (GBV).

KEY RESULTS ACHIEVED IN 2019

ADOLESCENT-FRIENDLY SEXUAL AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH SERVICES

NICARAGUA 2019

Active in Nicaragua since 1974, UNFPA supports the inclusion of issues related to population dynamics, young people, sexual and reproductive health and gender-based violence (GBV) into public policies. Nicaragua has successfully incorporated reproductive rights in its health and education laws and policies, and made headway in reducing maternal mortality. But key challenges remain, including a high adolescent pregnancy rate. UNFPA strengthens capacities to provide maternal health and newborn care, comprehensive sexuality education for young people and investments in the country's "demographic dividend". It also backs measures to prevent and respond to GBV.

PANAMA 2019

Active in Panama since 1975, UNFPA helps to reduce disparities in access to sexual and reproductive health services in this ethnically diverse country. Its programmes reach out to the Ngäbe-Buglé indigenous people, where maternal mortality is five times higher than the national average, including through better training for health care providers. Other assistance goes towards increasing education and services for youth, and bolstering care and prevention measures to reduce gender-based violence.

KEY RESULTS ACHIEVED IN 2019

MATERNITY HEALTH FACILITIES/TENTS/HOMES

819 pregnant women used maternity waiting homes, and efforts were redoubled to promote their use as a strategy of Essential Obstetric and Neonatal Care (CONE) to reduce maternal death

ADOLESCENT-FRIENDLY SEXUAL AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH SERVICES

98 primary care facilities provided youth-friendly adolescent sexual and reproductive health services, up from 70 in 2018, in 15 health regions of the country

QUALITY OF CARE

21 health workers from the five maternity waiting homes strengthened their capacities through training in protocols, family planning, monitoring, supervision and follow-up

INDIGENOUS WOMEN

75 technicians from the Chiriquí and Ngäbe Buglé Indigenous regions trained in the Red Code Strategy for the management of obstetric haemorrhage to reduce maternal mortality

PARAGUAY 2019

Paraguay has one of the highest maternal mortality, poverty and inequality rates in the region. Limited sexual and reproductive health services and education for young people help explain the high rate of adolescent pregnancy. UNFPA seeks to increase culturally sensitive service availability, information and contraceptives for vulnerable groups such as adolescent girls, rural women and poor people. Programmes support integrated population issues and knowledge sharing for national development, as well as advocating and promoting gender and human rights approaches in laws, budgets and policies.

PERU 2019

Peru has achieved economic growth and relative political stability, but still needs to expedite poverty reduction and close wide gaps among regions and population groups. Active in Peru since 1972, UNFPA supports regions that are lagging behind to improve the delivery of comprehensive reproductive health services, including to young people. The programmes help decision-makers develop capacities to use data disaggregated by gender, ethnicity and other parameters to enact regional population plans, as well as to implement emergency preparedness and response strategies. UNFPA also works to increase visibility of persons with disabilities in statistics, census and policy discussions. UNFPA also supports advocacy for public policies to advance gender equality.

URUGUAY 2019

While Uruguay has seen a significant decline in the poverty rate since 2005, deep social, territorial, generational and ethnic inequalities persist. UNFPA supports the development of comprehensive sexual and reproductive health services across the country by generating evidence, promoting capacity development, and strengthening public policies and civil society. Efforts are also geared towards addressing the needs of adolescents and youth. VENEZUELA (BOLIVARIAN REPUBLIC OF) 2019

While the Constitution guarantees sexual and reproductive rights, maternal mortality in Venezuela remains in the medium range. Active in Venezuela since 2003, UNFPA backs government investments in the systematic procurement and distribution of contraceptives, and promotes young people's access to services and comprehensive education, given high teenage pregnancy rates. Programmes also help curb sexually transmitted infections such as HIV, and bolster responses to domestic violence and the sexual abuse of children and adolescents.

GLOSSARY

Basic emergency obstetric and newborn care (BEmONC): This level of care can be provided with skilled staff in health centres, large or small, and is critical to reducing maternal and neonatal death. It includes the capabilities for: administering antibiotics, uterotonic drugs (oxytocin) and anticonvulsants (magnesium sulphate); manual removal of the placenta; removal of retained products following miscarriage or abortion; assisted vaginal delivery, preferably with vacuum extractor; and basic neonatal resuscitation care.

Comprehensive emergency obstetric and newborn care (CEmONC): This level of care is typically delivered in hospitals and includes all the basic functions above, plus capabilities for: performing caesarean sections; safe blood transfusion; and provision of care to sick and low-birth weight newborns, including resuscitation.

Demographic and Health Survey (DHS): The DHS programme conducts national surveys to improve and institutionalize the collection and use of data by host countries for programme monitoring and evaluation and for policy development decisions. Supported by UNFPA, it collects and disseminates accurate, nationally representative data on health and population in developing countries, including information on fertility and total fertility rate (TFR) and reproductive health.

Electronic logistics management information system (eLMIS): Paper-based systems of health data management are transitioning to electronic formats. Computerized logistic management information systems support faster and more accurate reporting of supply chain data and reduce stock-outs of reproductive health supplies.

Essential Services Package for Women and Girls Subject to Violence: The essential services package is a guidance tool identifying the essential services to be provided to all women and girls who have experienced gender-based violence, including services that should be provided by the health, social services, police and justice sectors.

Female genital mutilation (FGM): FGM is a harmful practice that involves altering or injuring the female genitalia for non-medical reasons, and it is internationally recognized as a human rights violation

Gender-based violence (GBV): GBV is an umbrella term for any harmful act that is perpetrated against a person's will and that is based on socially ascribed differences between males and females. It includes acts that inflict physical, sexual or mental harm or suffering, threats of such acts, coercion and other deprivations of liberty.

Living in poverty: According to the World Bank, the international poverty line is measured by a threshold of US$1.90 a day. More than 700 million people live in extreme poverty in 2020. Globally, there are 122 women, 25 to 34 years old, living in extreme poverty for every 100 men of the same age group.

Long-acting reversible contraceptives (LARCs): These modern methods of contraception include the intrauterine device (IUD), contraceptive implants (one rod and two rod) and injectable contraceptives.

Maternal Death Surveillance and Response (MDSR): This is a form of continuous surveillance that links the health information system and quality improvement processes from local to national levels. It includes the routine identification, notification, quantification and determination of causes and avoidability of all maternal deaths, as well as the use of this information to respond with actions to prevent future deaths.

Minimum Initial Service Package (MISP) for Reproductive Health: The MISP is a priority set of life-saving activities to be implemented at the onset of every humanitarian crisis.

Misoprostol: This widely available, low-cost and efficient maternal health medication is used in post-abortion care and management of miscarriage.

RHCS survey: The RHCS survey is a facility-based survey that tracks availability of contraceptives and life-saving maternal health medicines as well as availability of trained health service providers. It is conducted bi-annually in most UNFPA Supplies programme countries. RHCS stands for reproductive health commodity security.
